CHARLEROI POLICE ARREST TWO MEN CONCERNED IN AUTO THEFTS

Five Cars Now in Their Possession, Awaiting Owners

EXPECT TO RECOVER OTHERS

Chief Albright and Officer Murphy on Saturday morning last, arrested Thomas Jennings, and Thomas Allen, both of Monongahela, and lodged them in the lockup in the new borough building, on a charge of stealing automobiles.

These arrests came as the culmination of a long drawn-out search for cars which had been stolen from the streets of Charleroi, which of late had become rather numerous. This morning Chief Albright had five Ford touring cars in his care at the new borough building, with the prospect that at least one more would be added to the collectioon before the day is over.

The men now in custody are said to have admitted to have taken cars and sold them, pocketing the proceeds. It is known definitely that Allen sold to Frank Osterhout, of Monongahela, a Ford touring car, for which the purchaser paid the sum of $275.00. This car the purchaser returned to Chief Albright this morning, taking a receipt therefore, but who the machine belongs to is not known at this time. Among the collection at the borough building is believed to be the one owned by Mr. Franks, whose car was stolen last April from in front of the Armory in Monongahela, while Mr. Franks was playing with an orchestra there. Other Ford car owners who have lost their machines by theft have looked over the autos now in possession of the local police, and it is likely that all of them will be identifieed.

During the past month or so four Ford cars have been stolen in Charleroi and a number in Monessen, the police being of the opinion that the men whom they now have in their possession have been concerned in the disappearance of at least twenty. The police have trail of ten all of which they expect to recover.

Both Jennings and Allen are mining men holding state certificates as fire bosses and were employed in the mines in the vicinity of Monongahela. The police believe they are part of a combination which has been active for some time in getting away with cars and then selling them. One of the cars recovered by the police was found at Marianna, where the new owner at first refused to give it up, but later was convinced that the best thing to do was to surrender possession.

Another car was sold by Jennings to a prominent mining official in Monongahela, and the local police expect this car to be brought to Charleroi for identification.

Jennings is a married man with three children, while Allen is single. Both are men who have heretofore stood high in their home community annd their arrest was the cause of great surprise among their friends.

It is said that both Jennings and Allen attended the big fight at Toledo on the Fourth, making the trip in one of their autos.

ELKS ARE AGAINST THE BOLSHEVIKI

At the recent session of the national lodge of Elks held in Atlantic City, a resolution was adopted directing all subordinate lodges to employ energetic efforts to bar from membership all persons who express sympathy with Bolshevism and kindred "isms." The resolution further enjoined all lodges to participate in every movement which has for its object the education of foreigners in the ideals of the nation.

VOTERS MUST GIVE PARTY PREFERENCE

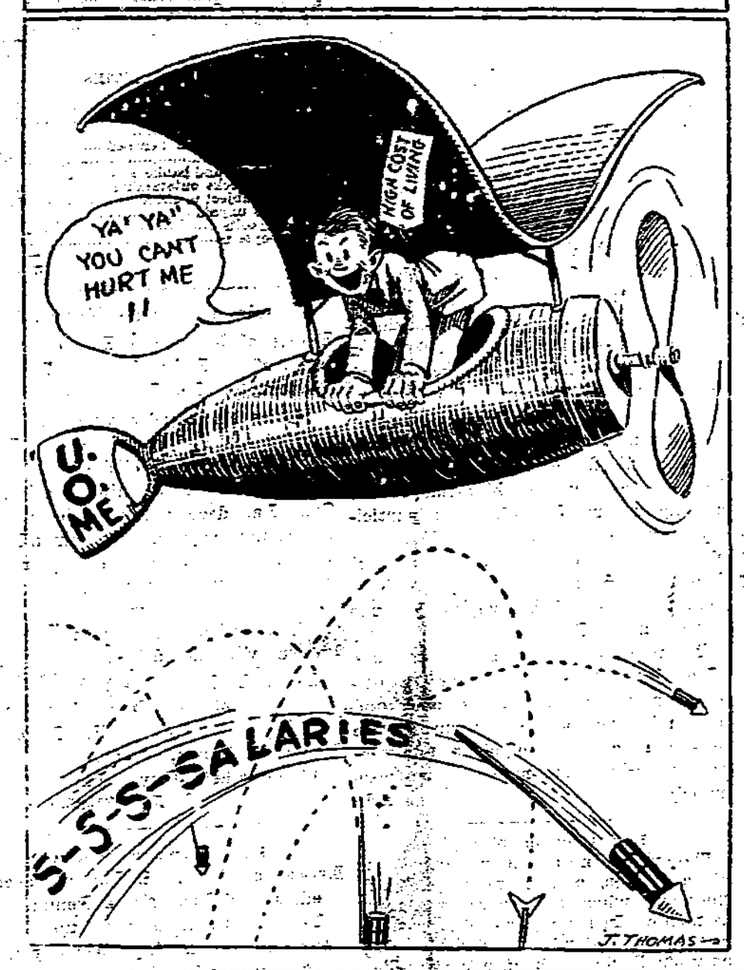
Many voters of the county have failed to give any party choice when registered by their respective registry assessors. The assessors say that when they visit the homes of voters, and find they are away, they leave word for them to fill out the papers left at their homes in which they may designate their party choice. Frequently the voters fail to do as suggested, and when they attend the primaries and are not allowed to cast their ballots, they are ready to place the blame on the assessors. Sometimes the assessors are told it is none of their business when they ask the voter to name the party to which he belongs.

The registry assessors are required to be at their respective polling places this year on July 15 and 16, all day, in order that voters who have been missed may be properly registered, or where persons who have not declared their party choice may attend and designate their preference.

MINES OPERATE NIGHT AND DAY

The Ronco and Lambert mines of the Frick Coke company are being operated both night and day as well as on Sunday in order to keep up with the demand of the Clairton by-product coke ovens. The tipple at Lambert has been equipped with electric lights, that loading may be on at night as well as during the day. The demand at Clairton has increased to such an extent that it is necessary for the boats of the Carnegie Steel company to work on Sunday as well as other days of the week.

SAFE—BUT INSANE



Three Towns Give Welcome To Their Returned Soldiers

Roscoe, Elco and Stockdale joined in a tri-town celebration on Saturday last in honor of their soldier boys, the entire day being devoted to the welcome home program which had been so ably arranged by a committee composed of both men and women of the three communities. Almost one hundred men went from these towns to answer the call of the country to service in the great war, and the home folks deemed some celebration eminently fitting to celebrate the return of the boys to peaceful pursuits.

The program included a ball game in the afternoon between the soldier boys and the local club, followed by military maneuvers, after which a big picnic dinner and dancing featured the day. There was also a parade of the men, which was reviewed by Lieut. Col. John Aiken of the 110th Infantry, and Lieut Alex Gray of the 148th Aero Squadron. Col. Aiken was among the early arrivals during the day, and remained on the scene until the conclusion of the program.

The boys from that district who served during histilities were scattered in units while in service overseas, some serving in the 28th, others in the Blue Ridge, some in the Third Division, and it was a reunion to many of the soldiers as well as with the folks.

The home committees had prepared a delightful program, and with fine weather the occasion was one of the most successful events ever arranged for by our neighboring towns. Music was furnished by the Rocoe and the California bands, and by the Charleroi High school orchestra, with the result that from the beginning of the program until late at night there was a continuation of the music. The picnic dinner furnished was a bountiful spread of the good things such as the women of the up-river towns know how to prepare, and no one was permitted to go away hungry. It was a real home coming and a splendid celebration.

The annual picnic of the Methodist Episcopal Sunday school will be held on Thursday next, July 17, at Cakland Park. The first car will leave at 1:10 and the second at 5:10. A splendid program of games and other forms of amusement will be arranged for the occasion.

Pamphlets Distributed In This Section Against 81 Merchants There

INCIDENT STIRS UP MERCHANTS

Donora merchants are considerably exercised over the distribution of a large number of circulars, not alone in that town, but also in Charleroi and Monongahela, as well as in intervening communities, asking the working people of these districts to boycott eighty-one business firms of Donora.

The circular distributed is headed, "Attention, Workers," and after stating that organization is one of the rights of the workingmen, makes the statement, that "you must eliminate those who oppose you." The circular then goes on to mention the fact that a number of firms and business men in Donora oppose the iron and steel workers in organizing, and that the thing for the men to do is to organize a co-operative store, from which they could secure their various necessities.

A meeting was held Sunday afternoon on the outskirts of Donora under the auspices of a number of labor leaders, but it is said it was not attended by any of the mill men of Donora, about two hundred union miners from outside points, as well as a number of women making up the audience.

The incident has stirred up a great deal of feeling among the business men of Donora whose names have been placed on the circular, and they are said to be taking steps to counteract the campaign now being made against them. The merchants say that an unfair advantage has been taken of them in making public their signatures which were attached to a letter they sent to organizers asking them to desist at least for the time in any agitation looking toward any organization of mill workers during the reconstruction period.

The steel corporation reports an increase of steel orders for June, which would seem to indicate that industrial conditions are again approaching the boom stage. Already the labor problem is given manufacturing plants a great deal of concern, and with mills increasing their orders this phase promise to become very acute before the advent of the fall months.

DEMAND FOR COAL

Foreign countries promise to take a large tonnage of American coal within the next year, owing to a shortage in the productive capacity of Europe. England which has always exported an immense tonnage of fuel finds itself somewhat handicapped over the decrease in production due to a reduction in the hours of labor on the part of the miners, as well as to other conditions now existing in that trade. An increase of 1.50 a ton on coals at ports in England has served to add another feature to the English coal market which may have a tendency to turn many dealers to the United States for a supply. Not only in Europe, but South America as well, is likely to look to this country for a greater part of their supply, and this demand, as well as taking care of domestic trade, will have a tendency before many months to cause every mine to run to capacity. More and more the United States appears to be taking the position of caring for the urgent needs of the entire world, not alone in money ad foodstuffs, but in fuel as well. If such an expectation is realized, the anticipated boom is not far away from realization.

If General Sir Douglas Haig made the statement that Britain "won the war" he has started something. During the continuation of hostilities the folks at home here in the states were regaled with the statements that certain things "won the war," referring more particularly to our various campaigns for the sale of bonds and the conservation of fuel and food. However, when we come down to the final analysis we must come to the conclusion that the American doughboy," together with the marines and the "gobs" had a mighty big hand in the final decision. It may not have been the battles in which the Americans participated that won the war, but the moral effect of these victories was too much for the Huns. Hence his collapse. As Admiral Schley said after the naval battle at Santiago, "there is honor enough to go 'round." So it is in the world war. There is honor enough for all. The British with their fleet and their armies; the French with their dash and their bravery; the Italians with their impulsiveness, and the men from the United States with their dogged determination all aided in "winning the war," for without the co-operation of any one of these nations the outcome would have been in doubt, if the battle had not been altogether lost. There may be those who wish to claim an undue amount of glory from the war but the United States is safe in the belief that in the finnal decision she bore a noble and most conspicuous part.

According to government forecasts the wheat crop in the United States for the year 1919 will be 244,000,000 bushels greater than it was last year. Other cereals will also show a great increase in production, and no doubt every bushel of it will find a very profitable market. Wheat is guaranteed by the government to $2.26, while corn is selling around $2 per bushel, while oats and barley as well as rye will also bring good figures. The potato crop promises to be 17,000,000 bushels larger than in 1918, while hay will be 30,000,000 tons greater. The returns to the farmer will exceed those of previous years by millions of dollars, but in spite of all this affluence in the way of crops the high cost of living still continues to go higher with no immediate prospect of abatement. Both products are away up, and the prospects seem to be that they will go higher, although government restriction has been removed for several months.

Unless there is some relief the government may have to come to the support of the people and so regulate prices that it may be possible for a family of the ordinary number to live without being compelled to pay all their money for eatables.

DOWN IN MEXICO

Mexico is a subject of much concern with the administration. Mr. Carranza, who succeeded Huerta as President of that unhappy Republic, has not made good, according to reports, and as a consequence conditions are more or less chaotic in a governmental way with our southern neighbor. Just what steps will be taken to bring order out of the chaos that country has not yet been determined, but it is apparent that some steps will have to be taken to make Mexico a safe place for its people as well as democracy. Confiscation of valuable property owned by foriegn capital is not a very good way to establish the country in the affections of those who would make investments there, and who and who would be a benefit to the country if they were guaranteed protection to which they are justly entitled. Mexico may be "mandatory" of the United States under the league of nations, and we presume it, but it is going to take some decisive action to bring the government officials down there to a realization of their responsibilities.

EDUCATION.

Returning American soldiers without number have declared that the war has taught them one thing, the value of an education. In thoughtless comment this has been interpreted as a profession of allegiance to the kind of education that eventuates in a nice appreciation of Walter Pater and the sonnets of Michael Angelo. This is not the thought of the soldier. The concrete fact in his mind is that only college men were received at Plattsburg, and that those who rose from the ranks were men of information and understanding. Whatever may have happened to the intellectual leaders, sundry millions of young Americans have learned the lesson, by no means obvious, that knowledge is power, and that men who have achieved their leadership by means of knowledge deserve it.—New York Times.

While many have anticipated that we will have a short "wet" regime before the advent of constitutional prohibition, there are others who point out the fact that so long as we have troops on the Rhine the demobilization of the army will not be completed. This latter view may be correct, although the force to be kept on the Rhine is so small that it could be furnished by the regular army establishment. However, finally, the question is one for the President to determine, and no doubt he will take council with his legal adviser before taking any steps looking toward lifting the ban on alcoholic liquors. At best, there seems to be a long "dry" spell in prospect.

It is a good sign that crops are above the average in Germany this year. Perhaps all Germans may realize after a time that raising wheat is a more sensible as well as a more remunerative pursuit than raising Cain.

Undoubted Proof.

An eminent pianist was about to give a recital in a large hall. As the audience was filing in a man staggered up to the door and presented a ticket. "You cannot go in," said the official in charge; "you are not in a fit condition." "Didn't I pay for my ticket?" asked the man. "Isn't it in order?" "It's all right," was the reply, "but you—you are all wrong—you are intoxicated!" "Intoxicated? Of course I'm intoxicated! If I wasn't do you think I would come to a piano recital?"

Doomed to Wretchedness.

Let a man choose what condition he will, and let him accumulate around him all the goods and gratifications seemingly calculated to make him happy in it; if that man is left at any time without occupation or amusement, and reflects on what he is, the meager, anguid felicity of his present lot will not bear him up. He will turn necessarily to gloomy anticipation of the future; and unless his occupation calls him out of himself, he is inevitably wretched.—Pascal.

Among the fossils recently discovered by the United States geological survey are remarkably well-preserved impressions or casts of leaves of several extinct varieties of ash, oak, beech and hickory, which were found, with present-day species, in states bordering the Gulf of Mexico. Although the leaves themselves have rotted and gone, here and there some were buried in soft clay by sediment in such a manner as to leave perfectly preserved impressions. The nuts, on the other hand, neither decayed nor petrified, but fell into pools of water, which is one of the best preservatives in nature, and sooner or later were also buried under silt and clay. Owing to their hard shells, those that fell into places favorable to their preservation are today in excellent condition, although slightly flattened by the long soaking and the gentle pressure of the clay. The deposit in which the leaves and nuts were found is not less than a million years old.—Youth's Companion.

Lieutenant Colonel John Aiken Is a Candidate for Office of County Register

JOHN AIKEN

Lieutenant Colonel John Aiken announces his candidacy this morning for register of wills of Washington county subject to the decision of the Republican voters, at the primary in September.

Colonel Aiken has been a clerk in the commissioners' office for 12 years, leaving his duties there in June, 1916 for service on the Mexican border and again in July, 1917, to participate in the war against Germany, entering the service as captain of Company H, and returning as lieutenant colonel of his regiment, the 110th, 28th Division.

If nominated and elected to the office, Colonel Aiken's long experience in the commissioners' office and his military service assures the people a capable, efficient administration, based on modern business principles. Adv

Salt Used as Money.

The value of salt is recognized in all countries, and in those parts of the world where it is scarce it is used as money. In some parts of Abyssinia bars of salt and rifle cartridges are the only small change in circulation. The bars are ten inches long and two inches in length and breadth. Five or eight "salts" make one dollar, depending on the distance of the source of supply. Three cartridges have the value of one salt.

Seemed Indelicate.

Maggie always liked to talk over the telephone; one morning before she was dressed, aunty called up and after talking to mamma asked to speak to Maggie, but she positively refused to come to the phone, and when mamma asked her why she would not talk to aunty over the phone she said, "I'm 'shamed to talk when I isn't dressed."—Chicago Tribune.

Ancient Jewels.

That women of ancient times were not less fond of jewelry than those of today might reasonably be taken for granted. But the remarkable fact (as recently ascertained by archeologists) is that the jewelry they wore—at a period, let us say, 1,000 years before the birth of Christ—was fully equal in artistic workmanship to the best products of the twentieth century.

To Care for Oilcloth.

To clean oilcloth rub with a flannel dipped in turpentine. Then shave half an ounce of beeswax into a large cup and stand the cup in boiling water. Add a saucerful of turpentine, a little shaved castile soap and a few drops of oil of citronella. Whip until it begins to get stiff. A little of this rubbed into the oilcloth will make it clean.

Cleanliness Necessary.

When our daughter was six years old she was taken to see her first vaudeville performance. One number on the program was a dancer, who wore very little, and Lova's first remark when she saw the dancer was: "Oh, mamma, but she has to wash herself clean, so much of her shows."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Clean Photographs.

Dirty photographs are so unsightly that you will be glad to know there is a way to clean them. Moisten a soft cloth with warm water to which a little ammonia has been added; wring the cloth out well and wipe the photographs very lightly, drying them immediately with a soft dry cloth.

Drum's Place in Music.

The drum is a relic of ancient ages. Music in its crudest form is fundamentally rhythm—later to develop into harmony. The drum, lacking pitch, lacking true musical expression, nevertheless essentially registers rhythm. It represents music in its infancy as devised by primitive peoples.

The Great Art.

There is but one art—to omit! Oh, if I knew how to omit I would ask no other knowledge. A man who knew how to omit would make an "iliad" of a daily paper.—Robert Louis Stevenson.

Mothers in Heaven.

"Perhaps even from heaven our mothers see us and protect us still. I think they do."—"Mothers and Children," by Frank Danby.

Longfellow Justly Popular.

Longfellow is justly popular as the poet who, above all other poets of this country, has expressed with a varied and finished art the simple, natural, elemental affections and sentiments. His literary productions are confined almost entirely to those in poetic form. Hyperion, a rather florid romance, and Kavanagh, a romance of somewhat better quality, are the two exceptions. His well-known "Psalm of Life," "The Song of Hiawatha," "Evangeline," and many other poems have made his name a familiar household word, and every schoolboy is familiar with "The Village Blacksmith," "The Wreck of the Hesperus," and the "Building of the Ship," which are the melodious phrasing of thoughts and feelings dear to the children even of a larger growth.

Gold Leaf.

There appears to be some mystery about the origin of gold leaf. It is found, for example, in connection with the most ancient known mummies, having been used for covering teeth, tongue, skin, etc. Sometimes it is also found on the coffins. Gold leaf was also used on the tombs and monuments of ancient Egypt. The process of making gold leaf has thus been known since the eighth century, B. C. In the eleventh century it seems to have attained as high a degree of perfection as today. The gold leaf on some ancient Grecian pottery, indeed, is as thin as that now used.

Wonderful Teeth.

Aboriginal native teeth are not what they used to be, says the Sydney (Australia) Bulletin and Jimmy Paiwan may yet have to depend upon a two dollar set of grinders. This will be a cold day for James. I have seen a nigger use his teeth to haul off the skin of the coconut and complete the operation without any trouble. The islanders are careful about washing the teeth and giving them a polish-up with pumice-stone; but the introduction of various white-man things is beginning to have the usual effect.

EVERY CAN PUT UP MEANS PERISHABLES SAVED

Harrisburg, July 14.—(Special)—The Bureau of Markets of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture sends out the following forecast regarding the supplies of near-by fruits and vegetables for the present week:

The war is over but the need for conservation of near-by vegetables and fruits still exists. Housewives should go to market and buy the products that are in season. This week practically all markets will be well supplied with green and wax beans, beets, onions, cabbage, peas, lettuce and radishes.

Locally-grown sweet corn, cauliflower and tomatoes still are scarce. Small quantities of new celery and turnips are being dug in some sections of southeastern Pennsylvania.

Harvest time is here and has brought the first early apples for cooking. Blackberries and huckleberries are ripening everywhere except in the northern part of the State. Reports show, however, that some damage has been done to the berry crops by the recent hot wave.

This is about the last opportunity to make a little currant, gooseberry and raspberry jelly. But few cherries are to be found now except in the northern part of the State.

Down in West Virginia it is reported the elderberry blossoms have been gathered in such quantities that there will be but a small crop of the berries. The blossoms are used to make a brew which is said to have a kick that makes old J. B. look like a plugged nickle.

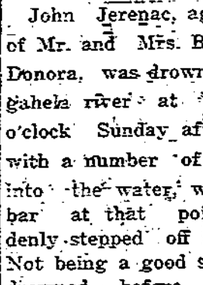
THIS MOTHER AND DAUGHTER

Both Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.



Steele, Ala.—"During the Change of Life I had hot flashes, was nervous, run down, and had sick headaches for two or three days at a time. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I am much stronger and better in every way than I was. My daughter's health broke down last June from teaching school without a rest, and she has taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and the Blood Medicine with good results. She is much better and teaching now and I give your medicine the praise. You are welcome to use this letter for the benefit of other suffering women."—Mrs. F. A. GAINES, R.R. No. 1, Steele, Ala.

Women who suffer as Mrs. Gaines did should not hesitate to give this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a trial, as the evidence that is constantly being published proves beyond question that this grand old remedy has relieved much suffering among women.

For confidential advice write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of their forty years' experience is at your service.

BOY DROWNED NEAR WEBSTER

John Jerenac, aged 10 years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bartley Jerenac of Donora, was drowned in the Monongahela river at Webster about 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The boy with a number of others had gone into the water, wading out on the bar at that point, when he suddenly stepped off into deep water. Not being a good swimmer he was drowned before help could reach him. Immediately after the accident a search began for the body, 36 sticks of dynamite being used in an effort to recover them. Finally seven hours after the boy had met his death his body was recovered by Walter Bakewell. Funeral services will be held in St. Charles church of Donora on Tuesday.

MONONGAHELA IS SWAMPED BY LOCALS

Charleroi won the ball game from Monongahela in easy fashion on Saturday last, by the one-sided score of 13 to 3. "Bill" Kramer, who staged a comeback on the 4th of July in which he won his game, attempted the same thing on Saturday last, but Bill's offerings were pie for the locals, who got leg-tired in running the bases in the first inning, when they chalked up eight large tallies. Coyne the regular pitcher for the visitors, who arrived late, replaced him after which the contest assumed more the character of a ball game. Urben smashed the ball to the river in the first inning for a homer, while every other player on the team got one or more hits.

Thursday evening the locals will play the Dunlevy team, the game being called at 6:30. Young Courtley, just home from France, where he played considerable ball with the American troops, will be in the box for the visitors. He is said to have considerable ability and is looked upon as a "comer." Considerable local interest is manifested in this young player, and Manager Osborne would like to have a large attendance, not only on account of the young man who is to show his wares, but likewise to give the home players that encouragement they so justly deserve. The local team is one of the best in the valley, and their efforts to give our town a good brand of baseball should be met with liberal patronage. If this is extended Manager Osborne promises to have some of the best independent teams in this section of the state appear on the local diamond.

W. B. Patterson, former local manager for the Prudential Insurance company, and who was transferred to Mansfield, Ohio, last spring, was in Charleroi over Sunday, arranging to have his household goods moved to his new home. Mr. Patterson and his family left today for the west, his goods being taken overland by truck.

LIGHT ON UNKNOWN LANDS

Explorer Added Greatly to World's Knowledge of Customs of Peculiar Peoples and Tribes.

Returning in April, 1917, from one of his trips, Capt. Theodore de Booy, the archeologist and explorer of previously unknown regions of Saato Domingo and Venezuela, who died in New York, brought with him a "swallow or regurgitating stick" from the Virgin islands.

The "swallow stick" was believed to have been used in worship by a West Indian priest more than 400 years ago. It was about five inches long, and carved from the rib of a sea cow, in the image of one of the West Indian tribal gods. It was said that there were only three other such sticks in existence.

Previously unknown regions in the mountains between Venezuela and Colombia were explored by Captain De Booy. No white man had ever before entered the high and cloud-capped mountains of that country, which are inhabited entirely by Indian tribes. It took many days of difficult mountain climbing to reach the heights where the tribes live in a land of perpetual mist and cold, although within ten degrees of the equator. Captain De Booy reported that for the most part he had found the natives friendly. At the start he was chosen to lead a campaign against a neighboring tribe to obtain women and other booty. All the material results of the expedition save the women were offered him, but he declined.

Captain De Booy conducted archeological investigations in the Bahamas, Cuba, Jamaica, Haiti, Santo Domingo, Turks and Caicos islands, Margarita, Trinidad, Martinique, Venezuela and the Virgin islands of the United States.

CITY OF GREAT FINANCIERS

Frankfort-on-Main Celebrated for Remarkable Men of Genius It Has Given to World.

Frankfort, the famous German town on the River Main, is the birthplace of the world's greatest millionaires. It is a wealthy commercial city, and quite disproportionately famous in comparison with its actual size.

The Rothschilds, whose ancestral home is now the solitary relic of the once famous Jewish quarter of the city; the Sterns and the Speyers in England, and the Kahns, the Kuhn, Loeb & Co., in this country, would alone suffice to make it remarkable as the birthplace of international financiers.

Even more extraordinary is the number of successful financial firms which had their birth or whose founders were born on the banks of the Main.

The reason which is usually given for this seemingly strange coincidence is that the geographical position of Frankfort is such that a mixture of races is fostered, and that has been proved to be specially favorable to financial genius.

What Every Man Expects.

Oh, yes, it is perfectly easy for any woman to learn to cook, writes Helen Rowland.

All in the world you need is the "right spirit, my dear."

And a stove and a cook book, and a bungalow apron. And—the genius of a Newton, the science of a Savarin, the patience of a Griselda, the agility of a Charlie Chaplin, the judgment of Solomon, the skill of Ariel, the imagination of Jules Verne, the persistence of Delilah, the versatility of Mrs. Fiske, the sure aim of Christy Mathewson, the coolness and composure of "Central," the calm decision of Haroun-al-Raschid, the thumbs of a blacksmith, the skin of a salamander, the batting average of Ty Cobb, the bluff of Cagliostro, the nerve of Jess Willard, the self-assurance of a kaiser, the faith of Joan of Arc, and—the meekness of a—worm!

Happiness in Work.

"Only regular, happy, productive work can give life its full savor," said Jules Payot in the "Education of the Will." "That upwelling sense of energy which we call the joy of living can only arise and be made part of daily life by work. He who does nothing at all has plenty of time to chew the cud of petty annoyances. The mind 'gnaws itself,' to use a popular French expression."

"When a soldier or laborer complains of the work he has to do let him be put to doing nothing," says Pascal, and Darwin testifies to the wretchedness of idleness with the remark, "During my stay at Maer my health has been poor and I have been scandalously lazy. The impression that this has made upon me is that nothing is so unbearable as laziness."

It did not happen to me to be born in a log cabin; but my elder brothers and sisters were born in a log cabin, raised among the snowdrifts of New Hampshire at a period so early that when the smoke first rose from its rude chimney and curled over the frozen hills there was no similar evidence of a white man's habitation between it and the settlements on the rivers of Canada. Its remains still exist; I make it annual visit. I carry my children to it, to teach them the hardships endured by the generations which have gone before them. I love to dwell on the tender recollections, the kindred ties, the early affections, and the touching narratives and incidents, which mingle with all I know of this primitive family abode.—Daniel Webster.

Drinking Water at Meals.

The notion that drinking water at meals interferes with digestion, by "diluting the gastric juices," has been utterly exploded, notes a health optimist. On the contrary, one should drink plenty of water at meals; it helps digestion. But it is best that the water should be at the temperature of the air, or cooled with a very little ice in summer. Another exploded idea is that the drinking of water at meals tends to make one fat. It is absolutely preposterous. The fact, indeed, is quite opposite, inasmuch as whatever encourages digestion is bound to discourage an unwholesome accumulation of fatty tissue. Lest it be imagined that these are only one man's opinions, it should be explained that they are fully indorsed by the experts of the government bureau of nutrition.

Knights of the Garter.

The Knights of the Garter is the oldest and most envied of all British orders. This order is stated to have been founded somewhere between June 24 and August 6, 1348, by that fearless and chivalrous monarch, Edward III. Some time before that date Edward went a considerable way toward founding an Order of the Round Table in commemoration of King Arthur. A round table, some 200 feet in diameter, was constructed at Windsor, and here the knights were entertained at the king's expense. By so doing Edward gathered around him a host of adventure-loving spirits, who afterward greatly facilitated his scheme for a war in France.

Flower Calendar.

At Grasse, a town in southern France, the seasons are marked by harvests of flowers, for this is the center of perfume making. In February and March violets and jonquils are the crop. In the summer months roses, orange blossoms and tuberoses fill the air with sweetness. In the autumn lavendar is carried to the factories in baskets, on donkey backs and in wagons. All of these flowers are treated in much the same way. They are stuck into pure white fat, which draws out all of their perfume. This fat becomes the basis for most of the pomades and perfumes for which Paris is famous.

Unskilled Labor.

A man never realizes what the term "unskilled labor" can mean until he boldly volunteers to repair the water faucets and take down the screen doors.—Washington Star.

Uncle Eben.

"The difficulty," remarked Uncle Wisewind, "about bein' a professional philosopher is that people keep wakin' you up to ask you why you don't take some of your own advice."

He Was Wrong.

The married man concluded to try out his new theory. Addressing his spouse, he said: "My dear, I should like to go to Jones' tonight for several hours. Mr. Jones is not ill, and does not require any sitting up with. If he did, I should let his wife do it. Mr. Jones is perfectly well so far as I know, except for a certain itching for a poker game. He is notoriously a rotten poker player, and very likely could be knicked for several dollars in the course of the evening. There might be something to drink—he did not specify concerning that. He only said my presence would be appreciated. I am sure that since I have told you the truth about this affair, you will consent to my going. Am I right?" He was not.

Wendell Phillips on Prussians.

What does Prussia represent? She represents the reorganized feudal system of the nineteenth century. She is a power marshaled into form by the one purpose of court and soldiers. She is not a nation; she is an army. Her great public schools, and all her civil life have a great, if not primary, purpose in the design to make men soldiers. Every man of the population—banker, machinist, tradesman, or scholar, everything but the pulpit—goes for the three appointed years into the camp to be disciplined to arms, and Prussia's policy is an effort to drag the world back 300 years. She is the great military outgrowth, the abnormal monstrosity, of the nineteenth century.—Wendell Phillips in 1873.

Ferryboats of Bullock Skin.

Everybody owns a private ferryboat down in the Himalayas. And what's more, everywhere the Himalayan goes his ferryboat is sure to go—provided there is water to be crossed. The boat, weighing but a few pounds, can be readily carried on the back. The ferryboat of the Himalayans is only an inflated bullock skin. A single skin will readily hold up a man, while two or three skins can be fastened together when two or more persons are to cross a river. In the latter case the skins are held together by a simple wooden framework and net, which also serves as the deck of the odd boat.

Great ideals make peoples great, and ideals are not great for the peoples unless they go beyond their boundaries. A people to be great must fulfill a great and holy mission in the world. Internal organization represents the sum of means and forces accumulated for the performance of a pre-ordained mission without. National life is the instrument, international life the goal. The prosperity, the glory, the future of a nation are in proportion to its approximation to the assigned goal.—Mazzini on "International Politics" (1871).
